25. Using State Regents' definition of liberal arts and sciences (quoted below), characterize the course as follows:

Non-liberal arts and sciences
Liberal arts and sciences

"The liberal arts and sciences are defined as those traditional fields of study in the humanities; social and behavioral sciences; communications; natural and life sciences, mathematics; and the history, literature, and theory of fine arts (music, art, drama, dance). Courses in these fields whose primary purpose is directed toward specific occupational or professional objectives, or courses in the arts which rely substantially on studio or performance work are not considered to be liberal arts and sciences for the purpose of this policy. Courses required for the General Educational Program are not necessarily synonymous or mutually exclusive with the liberal arts and sciences." State Regents Policy and Procedures. Chapter 2, Section 5, "Degree Requirements" part 1, (2). P. II-2-86

26. Please provide a concise, yet comprehensive, statement that explains the reasons for requesting the new course. Include documentation or assessment information supporting the specific request (if possible). Indicate the expected source of student enrollment (majors, minors, programs etc.)
The course is part of a larger submission for a new M.A. program in Strategic Communications and supportive to the overall new program's learning objectives and goals. It has an undergraduate counterpart that will allow additional students to easily enroll.

27. Which of the six transformative learning tenets does this course incorporate? (check all that apply or only those that apply) This question was a directive from the Provost and is used for informational purposes.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Global Communication examines communications practices around the globe through the application of communication theory, media research, and other pedagogies. The course utilizes case studies, discussions, and projects to understand the political and cultural context of media. The class emphasizes how conventional and social media sources impact society through various platforms.

COURSE INTRODUCTION

Through the understanding of communication theory and the knowledge of communication research one can better understand how individuals, groups, government, and media use communication to persuade, advocate or motivate the masses. This class is designed to develop an understanding of the media structures and press theories related to global communication and methods and practices used over multiple platforms, both conventional and non-conventional.

TEXTBOOK AND RESOURCES

TEACHING METHODS AND EVALUATION

The majority of classes will be of a lecture format, video presentations, group discussion and short weekly written papers, which will be uploaded to class folders on D2L. A midterm and final exam will also be administered. Another portion of your grade will entail a short group presentation relating to an assigned media theory. Each group presentation requires (1) group paper and should accompany the presentation and be uploaded to the ASSIGNMENT box in D2L prior to presentation.

All assigned presentations and work will be graded with a rubric with written feedback and be available in D2L's GRADE section.
The instructor holds the right to modify a grade after a grade has been recorded, if evidence is discovered that violates the instructions or policy pertaining to the assignment.

The mid-term and final exam will be of an essay format in which the student will also receive written feedback.

Also, your grade is based on your quality of work, not on the quantity or “how hard you worked.”

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

As a result of this course, students should be able to:
1. Identify and define the four major media structures.
2. Define and categorize a country’s media structure based on their media practice, political structure, and social influences.
3. Analyze the cultural and political influences that impact media structure and communication practices.
4. Examine the media communication methods used and their impact by applying communication theory.
5. Utilize APA style writing and research methods in a research paper.

ASSESSMENT TOOLS

Student progress or mastery of the aforementioned intended outcomes will be assessed using the following instruments: written papers, case studies, individual and group presentations and the research papers that accompany each presentation. A rubric and written feedback will be used as an assessment tool.

The student improvement and understanding of discussed theories will be evaluated through an exam that will integrate all the theories and applications discussed in the peer presentations conducted towards the end of the semester.

STANDARDS OF ACHIEVEMENT

All student work will be held against the following Academic Criteria:

- Accuracy of Information
- Organization and Preparation of class presentations
- Thoroughness of written papers and presentations
- Depth of critical thinking and observation
- Satisfaction of defined requirements
- Basic writing skills
- Fidelity of work (no plagiarism, cheating, etc.)
- Evidence of creative or innovative thinking

Grade composition:

(4) Theory Application assigned written papers x 25 points = 100 points
(1) FINAL GROUP Presentation and collective paper = 200 points
(4) Case study reviews and discussions x 25 = 100 points
Test #1 = 100 points
Mid-Term Exam = 100 points

Total possible points – 600 points

Grading Scale and Academic Profiles:

A- 610-549 (100-90%), B- 548-488 (89-80%), C- 487-427 (79-70%), D- 426-366 (69-60%), 365- Below (59%-Below)

Students will be given a numerical grade corresponding to the following objective grading scale. Note: The total number of points in the course is subject to change. The final grade will be determined on the total number of points assigned at the end of the semester.

TESTS: Each exam will be in an essay format and conducted on-line in a classroom. A 24-hour valid reason must be provided in order to make up an exam. This must be completed and communicated by the student. If instructor is not contacted by then the score will be recorded as a zero. If granted a make-up exam (not papers or presentations), a reduction of a full letter grade will occur on exam.

Excuses will not be tolerated:

Excuses such as: computer and other technical problems, lost book, boyfriend/girlfriend problems, roommate problems, job responsibilities, and a sick car will not be accepted in replace for not turning in your weekly paper assignments on time in D2L. Only CLA (College of Liberal Arts) “excused absences” will be accepted as a reason to be missed---and these are to be documented. See more below:

Following are circumstances that will be excused:

a. Travel considered part of the instructional program of the university and requiring absence from class (e.g. field trips, research presentations, etc.); b. invited participation in activities directly and officially sponsored by and in the interest of the university (e.g. athletic teams, debate teams, dance company, etc.); c. jury duty; d. military obligation; e. serious illness or injury; and f. death or serious illness in immediate family. Faculty members may require appropriate documentation to verify absences. Students are responsible for work missed due to absences. It is the student’s responsibility to initiate a request to make up class work or examinations missed.

ATTENDANCE POLICY

Class discussion creates awareness and a better understanding of the theories so that each student may benefit by becoming more knowledgeable. To do that one must attend class. Penalties will be assessed for absenteeism.

3-4 absences (as defined above)- A reduction of 50 points from total.
5-6 absences- 120-point reduction from total
7-8 absences- FAILING GRADE

ADDITIONAL CLASS AND ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS

Please have all mobile phones turned off (or on silence) prior to entering the classroom. Mobile phones will not be tolerated in the class. Laptops may be used for class purposes, not for entertainment during class.

All in-class assignments are required to be completed during the class period and all on-line assignments are required to be completed by the “close date.”
If you fail to appear in class that day, the assignment CANNOT be made up. This includes, but will not be limited to, potential quizzes, video reviews, and other class projects. When you miss class, all notes and class information must be obtained from a classmate.

WIKIPEDIA will not be accepted as an academic article, period.

CLASS CONDUCT: You're asked to be respectful of your peers and the academic process in this class. I would ask that you refrain from carrying on side conversations, eating, or doing crossword puzzles. You're also asked to make sure your cell phones are turned off during class and that you do not engage in text messaging your friends.

NOTE: YOU MAY NOT LEAVE THE ROOM DURING TEST TIME. ONLY ONCE YOU FINISH THE EXAM MAY YOU LEAVE.

EXAMINATION EQUIPMENT:
Students are not permitted to use or access the following items during an examination:
- Dictionaries
- Laptops/Computers
- Class notes, books

EXTRA-CREDIT AND LATE WORK

There is none. Deadlines are a must in today's professional world; therefore, no work will be accepted after its due date. One way to manage your time is to set daily or weekly goals of chunks of time to work on various tasks; you recall that the adage says, "You eat an elephant one bite at a time." Extra-credit work will not be provided to one student, but to all, if instructor sees a need. Often, extra-credit comes in the fashion of providing extra points to exams to help curve final results.

The professor reserves the right to amend the syllabus at any time. The contents of this syllabus are subject to revision 24 hours a day, seven days a week through the entire semester. Students are put on notice as the contents of this syllabus during the course of the semester via class lecture and D2L course message center. You're responsible to inquire of any changes of you fail to attend class or read your D2L notifications.
