25. Using State Regents’ definition of liberal arts and sciences (quoted below), characterize the course as follows:

- Non-liberal arts and sciences
- Liberal arts and sciences

"The liberal arts and sciences are defined as those traditional fields of study in the humanities; social and behavioral sciences; communications; natural and life sciences, mathematics; and the history, literature, and theory of fine arts (music, art, drama, dance). Courses in these fields whose primary purpose is directed toward specific occupational or professional objectives, or courses in the arts which rely substantially on studio or performance work are not considered to be liberal arts and sciences for the purpose of this policy. Courses required for the General Educational Program are not necessarily synonymous or mutually exclusive with the liberal arts and sciences." State Regents Policy and Procedures. Chapter 2, Section 5, “Degree Requirements” part 1, (2), P. II-2-86

26. Please provide a concise, yet comprehensive, statement that explains the reasons for requesting the new course. Include documentation or assessment information supporting the specific request (if possible). Indicate the expected source of student enrollment (majors, minors, programs etc.)

An understanding of legal issues within the media is a component of leadership in communications many students may not possess. The course is taught every semester as a 4000-level undergraduate requirement for three different majors in Mass Communication. Adding a graduate counterpart will not require additional faculty.

27. Which of the six transformative learning tenets does this course incorporate? (check all that apply or only those that apply). This question was a directive from the Provost and is used for informational purposes.

- Discipline Knowledge [X]
- Leadership
- Research, Scholarly and Creative Activities
- Service Learning and Civic Engagement [X]
- Global and Cultural Competencies [X]
- Health and Wellness [X]
28. Clearly explain how the characteristics of this course meet or exceed those outlined in Course Level Characteristics. (Copy and paste table from "Course Level Characteristics" document for the appropriate course level of proposed course. Document may be found on: http://sites.ucd.edu/academic-affairs/files/course-level-characteristics-table.doc).

Textbooks

Central Six
This course will meet Central Six objectives of providing discipline knowledge by reviewing the laws of mass communication in the United States. It will help students learn to solve problems by teaching them to use the law to solve societal problems. It will encourage ethical and civic engagement by providing them with an understanding of basic civics. And it will help graduate students understand how to manage a company’s media law problems by analyzing the processes a selected company utilizes to train its employees. Central Six goals not addressed in this course are global and cultural competencies, and health and wellness.

Course Policies
This is a lecture/discussion-oriented class. Attendance is important. If you miss more than four (4) TR classes, you will fail the course. There are NO excused absences. Plan doctor appointments, etc., accordingly. Students will be expected to participate in class discussions. I also expect you to keep informed via the news media of any new developments in media law. Your attendance record will be used to raise or lower your final grade if your grade average is borderline.
Course Requirements

1. We will cover 14 basic areas concerning media law by reading and discussing the 14 chapters in the text. After we have finished each chapter, you will be given a 20-question quiz covering the information in that chapter. Typically, chapters will be discussed on Thursdays with the quizzes on the following Tuesday. The 14 quizzes will be averaged together as one grade. If you miss a quiz, you may NOT make it up. It will count as a zero. The quizzes, averaged together, will count one fourth of your final grade.

2. Another fourth of your final grade will be based on your attendance of a state or federal trial, from which you will write a four to five-page report on what you learned. Those who write the best two papers will be named lead counsel for the plaintiff and defense for the final exam trial. Those responsible for the next two best papers will serve as co-counsel. Next highest will be awarded trial participant roles. Papers will be graded on completeness, grammar, punctuation, spelling, writing ability, and how well you demonstrate an understanding of the court procedure process. Court papers must be turned in on Thursday during the fifth week of the term. They must be typed and double-spaced.

3. Also, you will be given a hypothetical legal case from which you must identify the various media law problems and present them from both the position of the plaintiff and the defendant. This will be done by filling out forms that I will provide online. You will fill out a separate form for each legal problem you find. These forms will be typed and combined in a word document and will be due the last day of regularly scheduled class before final exam week. The forms will count one fourth of your final grade. They will be graded on completeness, grammar, punctuation, spelling, writing ability, and how well you adhere to the principles, laws and tests provided in the text and presented during lecture in class. An example of a completed form will be presented online. This online Word document, emailed to my UCO email account at mhanebutt@uco.edu, will be due between the hours of 8 a.m. and noon. Early and late papers will not be accepted, regardless of computer difficulties. You should keep a backup copy. If your computer is down, you will need to bring me a paper copy and put it in my university mailbox during the noted hours. The case will be distributed during the sixth week of class.

4. You will participate in a libel trial. The trial will count as your final exam and will occur during the scheduled two-hour final exam period. It will count one fourth of your final grade. Counsels for the plaintiff and defense will conduct the trial, and the other selected students will serve as witnesses. The rest of the class will serve as jurors and be responsible for turning in a written critique of the trial at the end of the exam period. The critique will be graded on the basis of completeness, grammar, punctuation, spelling, writing ability, and how well the student analyzed the process. Students participating in the trial will be graded on the basis of their understanding of the case and their preparedness as trial participants as exhibited during the trial process. Students who play their roles well will receive an “A.” The professor will serve as judge. The case will be distributed and roles will be assigned one month before trial. Students are expected to dress in an appropriate manner for court – suits or comparable clothing. Legal briefs are not required of counsel, but all lawyers are expected to have their cases ready for argument. Formal court rules will not be observed: I will, however, meet with counsel two weeks before trial to instruct them in basic court procedure.

5. Graduate students only: In addition to the other requirements, graduate students will write a comprehensive paper that examines how a particular business handles legal complaints. The paper should note any training the business provides its employees to handle such complaints, the process by which the company addresses and attempts to solve the complaints, and an analysis of any employee, procedures or training manuals the company utilizes in the process.

Your final grade -- aside from any adjustments due to absences -- will be determined by averaging these grades as follows:
Undergraduate students:

- Fourteen chapter quizzes = one-fourth
- Midterm court report = one-fourth
- Case outline = one-fourth
- Trial participation = one-fourth

Graduate students:

- Fourteen chapter quizzes = one-fifth
- Midterm court report = one-fifth
- Case outline = one-fifth
- Trial participation = one-fifth
- Term paper = one-fifth

Grades will be figured on the standard 10-point deviation scale -- i.e.- 100-90 A; 89-80 B; 79-70 C; 69-60 D; 59 and below F. Other university rules regarding withdrawals, etc., may apply. Please be sure you read and understand them as outlined in the current UCO Undergraduate Catalog. The University of Central Oklahoma complies with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the American with Disabilities Act of 1990. Students with disabilities who need special accommodations must make their requests by contacting the coordinator of Disability Support Services at 974-2549. The office is located in the Nigh University Center, Room 415. Students should also notify the instructor of special accommodation needs by the end of the first week of class. Mass Comm Week will involve morning classes on October 1 and 2. Students will be expected to attend Media Law classes on those days.
